Yale SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Women's Health and Empowerment through the Lens of a Culinary Maestro: A Conversation with Chef Asma Khan

Wednesday, November 4 | 3:00 - 4:00 P.M.
101 College Street, First Floor Café Area
Indian snacks and beverages will be served

Asma Khan
Chef and Founder of London's Darjeeling Express

Bhramar Mukherjee
Senior Associate Dean of Public Health Data Science and Data Equity

Melinda Irwin
Associate Dean of Research

What can an all-women kitchen teach us about leadership, nutrition, opportunity, and empowerment? Chef Asma Khan, a social activist and founder of London's Darjeeling Express, who was featured on Netflix's Chef's Table, brings a distinctive perspective to these questions.

Drawing on her culinary experience and commitment to social change and women's health, Khan will join YSPH associate deans Bhramar Mukherjee and Melinda Irwin for a conversation on women's health and empowerment, connecting perspectives from the culinary world and public health.

This event is open to active Yale community members only.

YSPH values inclusion and access for all participants. Please contact matthew.schlager@yale.edu with any requests or questions.